

TASTE THE UNWEARABLES
BY DE CULINAIRE WERKPLAATS

Designers Eric Meursing and Marjolein Wintjes of De Culinaire Werkplaats claim that 'food equals fashion'. They believe that what you eat tells a story as personal as the one that is revealed by the clothes you wear. Weaving garments that unite food, identity and style, the designers created Taste the Unwearables: a line of edible clothing and accessories ranging from necklaces made from strawberry paper to a rhubarb-paper wedding dress. Regardless of whether the apparel can be worn - and, if so, whether it keeps its shape - the work questions the temporality of fashion and clothing, while alluding perhaps to the fragility of the ecosystem.
